THE OLD TOWN OF DRAGØR & STORE MAGLEBY

WHERE HISTORY COMES TO LIFE

The heart of Dragør since the 18th century, the old town is a thriving warren of streets with some of the best-preserved houses in the whole of Denmark, dating back to its heyday in the 1700-1800s.

Leave the world behind as you wander into its labyrinth of yellow houses and thatched roofs. Take in a view of the Øresund Strait from a historic coastal fort or visit the old Dutch town of Store Magleby nearby and feel the years fall away. This is where past and present meet.

Porcelain dogs tell tales from their windowsills overlooking the street, while on the rooftops, observation towers watch the fishermen and shipping giants traverse the strait between Denmark and Sweden. There's always someone coming and going in a town like this.

A VIEW OF THE PAST

Relax with an ice cream and a view of the old harbour. Close your eyes and imagine the narrow streets busy with noisy geese, hustled from their houses to the fields, and the commotion of ships bringing goods into the town and beyond. It may be a quiet spot today, but it is built on the activity of traders and farmers from times gone by.

DK: HVOR HISTORIEN VÆKKES TIL LIVE Dragørs gamle bydel har været byens hjerte siden 1700-tallet. Gå på opdagelse i de smalle brostensgader mellem gule huse og stråtekede tage, som er nogle af de bedst bevarede i Danmark. Nyd udsigten over Øresund fra de historiske kystforter, eller læg vejen forbi den gamle hollandske landsby Store Magleby. Her mødes fortid og nutid i en by fuld af små fortællinger og særlige detaljer.

ET KIG IND I FORTIDEN Slap af med en is og udsigten over den gamle havn. Luk øjnene og forestil dig de smalle gader fyldt med larmende gæs, der drives fra husene ud til markerne, og travlheden fra skibe, der bragte varer til byen. I dag er her fredeligt, men stedet hviler på tidligere tiders livlige handlende og bønder.

A DAY IN DRAGØR

You don't have to be a local to find authentic experiences in Dragør. Wander the main street, past cosy cafes, local craft shops, ice cream kiosks and bakeries and take time to stop for a chat and a cup of coffee. Drop into the smokehouse for some smoked mackerel or visit a friendly traditional restaurant for a lunch of Danish open-faced sandwiches. Take an unhurried stroll past the red and black fisherman's huts by the harbour or visit some of Dragør's museums for a taste of the past. End the day with a dip in Dragør's sea bath.

A PIECE OF LIVING HISTORY

With 75 listed buildings and over 300 other buildings worthy of preservation around the town, Dragør is an important part of Denmark's cultural heritage. As you wander around the cobbled streets beside houses built 200 or more years ago, it is easy to feel like you've stepped back in time. Visit the local museums to learn more about Dragør's history and meet the colourful inhabitants of the past. The town's distinctive historic atmosphere remains as charming as it was during the golden age of shipping and trade.

While much of Dragør feels like an open-air museum, today it is a vibrant town where people live and work. You are very welcome to wander, but please take care that you respect the town's daily life and don't take photos in people's houses and gardens without permission. Stay on the paths and streets, even when taking photographs, and be sure to care for its cultural heritage so it can remain a special place for years to come.

DK: ET STYKKE LEVENDE HISTORIE

Med 75 fredede bygninger og mere end 300 andre bevaringsværdige huse er Dragør en vigtig del af Danmarks kulturarv. Når du går gennem de brostensbelagte gader mellem huse, der er 200 år eller ældre, føles det som at træde tilbage i tiden. Besøg byens museer og lær mere om Dragørs historie og de mennesker, der har sat deres præg på byen.

Selvom Dragør kan føles som et frilandsmuseum, er det i dag en levende by, hvor mennesker bor og arbejder. Du er velkommen til at gå på opdagelse, men vis hensyn til byens hverdag og respekter privatlivet i folks huse og haver. Bliv på stier og veje, også når du tager billeder, og vær med til at passe på kulturarven, så Dragør kan forblive et særligt sted i mange år fremover.

STORE MAGLEBY

Also known as 'The Dutch Town', Store Magleby is a characterful and unusual piece of Dutch-Danish history. In 1521, King Christian II invited around 24 Dutch families to bring their agricultural expertise to Copenhagen, allowing them to colonise a village on the outskirts of Dragør. The farms supplied his court with fresh vegetables. Farming families were allowed to live according to Dutch traditions, laws and customs. Today, the divide between this area and Dragør is noticeable in its street names and farm structures. It remains one of the best-preserved farming villages in greater Copenhagen, with its original village pond, Dutch-inspired church and historic roads still surrounded by fields.

DK: STORE MAGLEBY Landsbyen er også kendt som Hollænderbyen og er et særligt stykke hollandsk historie. I 1521 inviterede Christian 2. hollandske bønder til Amager for at dyrke grøntsager til hoffet. De hollandske familier fik lov til at leve efter deres egne traditioner, love og skikke. I dag ses arven stadig i landsbyens gårde, gadenavne, gadekær og kirke omgivet af åbne marker.

DK: HOLLÆNDERGÅRDENE Oplev historien om den hollandske bosættelse på Amager på Hollændergårdene i Store Magleby, hvor gæster inviteres til at tage del i en levende og sanselig oplevelse af historisk hverdagsliv. Gå på opdagelse i de gamle gårde og bondehaven, mød grise, høns og geder, og hjælp gårdens folk med daglige gøremål i sommeren og efteråret.

THE CAPITAL'S BACKYARD

DK: EN GRØN OASE

Dragør and its surroundings play a special role in the city of Copenhagen. The area acts as the capital's backyard, a large expanse of green space where locals and visitors alike come to relax, hike, cycle and enjoy time in nature.

Only a few metro stops from the heart of Copenhagen, this is where urban life meets heathland, fields, forests and coastal landscapes. Within it, you will find an international bird reserve and Pineskoven, Denmark's largest naturally regenerated birch forest, along with salt meadows and gravel paths, impressive historic forts and kitesurfers, plus a giant troll reclining under the trees.

FROM FARM TO TABLE

The fields and landscape around Dragør also function as the capital's vegetable garden, filled with wild mushrooms, fields of root vegetables and cabbages, and a shoreline brightened by sea buckthorn. In years gone by, the Dutch farms around Store Magleby supplied the King's table; today the area's produce supplies Copenhagen's renowned restaurants. Surrounded by deer, sea eagles and lush nature, this district feels far from the city's hustle and bustle, yet it's just a few stops away.

DK: EN GRØN OASE Dragør og landskabet omkring fungerer som hovedstadens baghave, hvor både lokale og besøgende kan vandre, cykle og nyde naturen. Kun få metrostop fra centrum åbner landskabet sig med heder, marker, skove og kystnatur. Her finder du et internationalt fugle-reservat, Pineskoven - Danmarks største naturligt selvsåede birkeskov - samt strandenge og grusstier gennem det åbne landskab. Undervejs møder du historiske forter, kitesurfere på vandet og en kæmpetrold, der hviler under træerne.

FRA JORD TIL BORD

Markerne omkring Dragør er også hovedstadens køkkenhave, hvor der vokser vilde svampe og marker med rodfrugter og kål, samt en kystlinje, hvor havtornens orange bær lyser op. I gamle dage leverede de hollandske gårde omkring Store Magleby grøntsager til kongens bord; I dag finder området råvarer vej til nogle af Københavns anerkendte restauranter.

AHOY THERE!

FISH AND SHIPS

From his tower above the city roofs, the pilot has watched the Øresund Strait for centuries. Views may change but the life of this maritime town still revolves around the water, where herring were fished and traders stopped on their way to and from the Baltic Sea in one of the busiest shipping lanes in the world. Dragør has long been one of the region's most important fishing and shipping towns, and its museums show and tell the stories of local life in connection with the sea.

Today, the water is the heart of daily life in Dragør as a place to work and play. Little ones can enjoy the safe, shallow waters and fine sand at Mormor Beach, while more experienced swimmers can dive into deeper water at Dragør Sea Bath. A stroll around the ramparts at Dragør Fort or Kongelund Fort offer a way to experience the military past in an atmospheric setting, with views of the blue everywhere you look. In the distance, the shore of Sweden and the Øresund Bridge trace a line along the horizon.

CATCH OF THE DAY

Drop into the smokehouse to try the bounty of the sea - smoked herring or eel remain the catch of the day - and relax in one of the town's harbourside cafés or restaurants with a cold refreshment in your hand. Wherever you go in Dragør, and whatever you do, you're in the presence of the sea.

DK: FISH AND SHIPS

Fra lodstårnet over byens tage har Dragørs lodser i århundreder holdt øje med Øresund. Udsigten kan have ændret sig, men livet i den maritime by kredser stadig om vandet, hvor der blev fisket sild, og hvor handelsfolk gjorde stop på vej til og fra Østersøen. Også i dag er havet en del af Dragørs hjerte, og havnen er meget velbesøgt af lystsejlere. På Mormorstranden kan du mærke det fine strandsand og dyp tærne i Dragør Søbad. Gå en tur ved Dragør Fort eller Kongelundsfortet med udsigt over sundet, og spejd Sveriges kyst og Øresundsbroen i horisonten.

DAGENS FANGST

Kig forbi røgeriet og smag på dagens fangst, hvor der stadig røges fisk hver dag. Slå dig derefter ned på en af byens caféer eller restauranter ved havnen med en forfriskning i hånden. Hvor end du går hen i Dragør, og hvad end du foretager dig, mærker du havets nærvær.

DRAGØR'S BEST KEPT SECRETS

SEA VIEWS ARE TAKEN TO A WHOLE NEW EXTREME

Look up while you're walking around the Old Town and you'll see some unique features on the roofs. Known as a kikkenborg, these skinny look-out towers give excellent views of the Øresund Strait. Traders used to scan the sea for ships headed into port, then rush down to get to the quay first to greet their captains and make a deal.

DK: HAVUDSIGT I SÆRKLASSE Kig op, når du går rundt i den gamle by, og læg mærke til de særlige kikkenborge på tagene. De små udsigtstårne blev brugt af købmænd til at spejde efter skibe i Øresund, så de kunne nå først til kajen og handle med kaptajnerne.

THERE MAY BE GEESE ON THE BEACH

Back in the day in Dragør, people kept geese in their homes, typically under a bench in the living room, let out into the wide cobbled streets in the morning. As you walk around town, look out for the small goose gates, little openings made just for geese to get through, that tell a story of this unusual past. In a little area on the beach, nicknamed The Goose Republic, they still roam freely. Geese have become a symbol for Dragør – many people have geese statues in their houses and windows.

DK: DER KAN VÆRE GÆS PÅ STRANDENE Tilbage i tiden holdt man gæs i hjemmet, som gik til og fra via små gåselemme, der stadig kan findes rundt omkring i byen. Gæssene blev en del af hverdagen og byens liv. I dag kan gæs stadig ses i området kaldet "Gæserepublikken".

THE CHINA DOGS SEND HIDDEN MESSAGES

Back in time, the people of Dragør had a secret way to signal personal information to each other. In many houses, porcelain dogs were displayed in the window to offer a message to passersby. Sailor's wives would position them in different ways to signal whether their husbands were home or away at sea. They still feature on windowsills today.

DK: PORCELÆNSHUNDENE TALER Porcelæns Hunde i vinduerne havde en skjult funktion i gamle dage. Hustruer til sømænd brugte dem til at vise, om deres mænd var hjemme eller på havet. Hundene ses stadig i vindueskarmene i Dragør.
